FORMER BRISTOL GIRL IS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER-KIDNAPING CASE IN PHILADELPHIA; SHAPIRO AFFAIR

Helen Louise Taylor Had Pistol When Taken Into Custody

SHE REFUSES TO TALK
Held After Body of Willie
Shapiro, Slain With Pipe, Is Found

Helen Louise Taylor, 19, and a former resident of Bristol according to officers of the Second Detective Division at Philadelphia, is being held without bail for the part she is alleged to have played in the murder of Willie Shapiro.

When the Taylor girl was taken into custody she carried a pistol strapped to her leg. She is a blonde.

John A. Miller, 21, is also being held with the Taylor girl. According to the story told by the police, Shapiro was the Taylor girl's "man." Miller became infatuated with Miss Taylor, and won her heart, and later is alleged to have removed Shapiro from the picture with a piece of iron pipe. When Miller and Miss Taylor were arraigned before Magistrate Conner they both refused to talk.

Detective Lieutenant William Engle and his men claimed they unraveled a mystery when a woman lodger saw a dark stain spreading on the ceiling of her apartment at 16th and Master streets. Shapiro's body was found on the floor above with the head crushed. Nearby stood a chair and around it a section of rope cut with a knife. Police at first thought Shapiro had been tied to the chair. Later they discovered it held Benjamin Berliner, 30, a suspected gangster whom Shapiro is said to have kidnapped for $10,000 ransom. The girl and Miller are alleged to have been in the plot, but despaired of collecting the ransom after several days of waiting.

Berliner finally induced his captors to cut him loose on the promise of reward. The liberated Berliner and Miller lay in wait in the room until Shapiro arrived. They killed him with a piece of pipe when he entered, police say. Berliner, arrested several days later, accused Miller of wielding the pipe. Miller denies it and places the blame on Berliner.

David M. Green, 42, a private detective, and a cousin of Shapiro, whom police charge had knowledge of the kidnapping of Berliner, is also implicated in the plot, and is under $800 bail as a material witness.

Mysterious Shooting Is Still Unsolved

State Police of the Doylestown sub-station traveled over 100 miles Thursday investigating the mysterious shooting of James R. Hansell, seventy, Buckingham township farmer, who was admitted to the Doylestown Emergency Hospital late Wednesday night with a bullet wound in his scalp.

Trooper John Rothwell, who together with Troopers George Sauer and McIntosh interviewed a large number of persons who had transacted business with Hansell recently, were unable to point a finger of suspicion at any particular individual, although they expect to continue the investigation today.

Police are certain that the motif of the shooting was robbery, for Hansell had a sum of money in his clothes at the time.

Hansell is still confined to the Emergency Hospital. His condition is reported to be very good.

County Detective Antonio Russo, of Bristol, is assisting the State Police in the investigation, said that he expected to interview several persons who may throw some light on the shooting.

Hansell was shot near the base of the skull while he was seated in a chair in the living room of his home, but the bullet only traveled under the scalp. The unknown assailant fired the shot through a window pane. The police have not determined what type of weapon was used by the assailant who fled.

CONGRESS HEADING TOWARD LIBERALIZATION

Washington, D. C., Mar. 25.—The new deal in national prohibition found Congress heading today toward liberalization of the medical liquor law; the probable legalization of ten per cent wine and repeal of the bone-dry law for the national capital.

Leaders at both ends of the Capitol indicated that the liberalization measures would be enacted.

The proposal to abolish limitations on the issuing of liquor prescriptions by physicians was approved by the Judiciary Committee of both the House and the Senate. The bill may be enacted next week. It would allow physicians to issue as many liquor prescriptions to an individual as would be "necessary to supply his medical aid." The drive to legalize ten per cent wine lagged over the week-end but Representative Lea, Democrat of California, announced he would press for its enactment next week.

Lea declared legalization of ten per cent wine would be constitutional and really raise some revenue for the government. Sitting as a sort of city council, the Senate District of Columbia Committee wrestled with a bill repealing the city's bone dry prohibition law and permitting the sale of the legalized 3.2 per cent beer. Committee senators were dissatisfied with the bill just passed by the House and were prepared to revise it completely.

The new Senate measure will be offered to the country as a model for all other cities. It would be based on the House plan for separating retail sales for consumption on the premises from the "cash and carry trade." One license would be granted to drug stores, restaurants, cafes and clubs to sell beer to be drunk on the premises and another issued for selling bottled or keg beer to be delivered to the home.

TEACHERS TELEGRAPH STATE ASSEMBLY

Effort Made to Intimidate
Legislators Considering
The Bill

RECEIVE SHARP REBUKE

HARRISBURG, Mar. 25.—Members of the House showed their resentment to the flood of telegrams being received from school teachers protesting against any proposed reductions in salaries. The House unanimously adopted a resolution of Representative Surface, Snyder, censuring the teachers for their action.

During the last week teachers, especially from the vicinity of Hazleton, have been bombarding the House members with telegrams of protest. Today each member received a message threatening reprisals at the polls next year for any legislator who voted to cut the teachers' pay.

"I consider this action an insult," Surface declared. He charged the teachers with acting in an "unethical and offensive" manner for threatening members of the House.

"Such a telegram," Surface shouted with emotion, as he displayed the wired communication, "is an insult to our intelligence." His remarks were greeted with loud applause.

The telegrams poured into the House yesterday, urging defeat of the six Wilson measures, made a special order of business for 11 o'clock Monday night. They warned that "teachers in your legislative district will be strongly organized before next year's primaries to vote for friends at the polls."

They added that "each block of 100 teachers counts for 1,000 votes."

During the present session the Snyder county member has sponsored several measures aimed to reduce taxes of property owners. He also has introduced an income tax bill to be used for support of schools.

On Monday night the House has on its calendar for special order of business a series of six bills by Representative Wilson, McKean, affecting schools. One of them permits salary reductions in the next biennium.

This week Wilson received more than 1,000 telegrams from school teachers protesting against the proposed pay reducer. Most of these telegrams came from Hazleton and vicinity.

ROTARY DISTRICT TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Seventy-Four Clubs in Three States To Be Represented

MEET AT ALLENTOWN

Rotarians from the 50th district of Rotary International (ten clubs in Delaware, 20 clubs in New Jersey and 44 clubs in Pennsylvania) will assemble at Allentown on April 23rd, 24th and 25th to talk over the common problems of their clubs and their area, the extension of Rotary to other communities in their vicinity, and how best to carry out their civic responsibilities in their own communities.

Fifty-three such gatherings are being held in the United States and Canada this spring. The total attendance at these conferences will be more than fifty thousand for they are high spots in the Rotary year. They rank second only, in importance and interest to Rotarians, to the International Convention which is to be held this year in Boston, Massachusetts, June 26-30. Delegations from every Rotary club in this district and prominent Rotarians from other parts of the country are expected at the district conference. David J. Reese, of Ventura, California, a director of Rotary International, will represent that body at the meeting. His speech on the ideals and purposes of Rotary will be one of the features of the program.

District Governor C. Edgar Dreher, of Atlantic City, will preside over the sessions, which will consist of general and round table discussions relating to various branches of Rotary club activities. Among the topics for discussion are: Community Service, The Rotarian's Opportunity for Service Through His Vocation, Boys Work, Crippled Children Work, and Student Loan Funds.

One of the important duties of the conference is to choose a nominee for district governor for the coming year. This nominee will be formally elected at the International convention at Boston, but he is the selection of the conference delegates. The governor is picked for his willingness to give a (Continued on Page 3)

Perkasie Salesman Drops Dead in Bedroom

PERKASIE, Mar. 25.—Alton Sipes, 44 years old, dropped dead in his bedroom yesterday. Members of the family believe he took an overdose of medicine for a severe cold from which he suffered.

Sipes ate a hearty breakfast. He at first said he was feeling relief from his cold, but later said he felt dizzy. His wife advised him to go back to bed, and he was about to do so when he collapsed and fell over the bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sipes live on South Third street, Perkasie, with Mrs. Sipes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Ringer.

Sipes, a vacuum cleaner salesman, was taken ill in Philadelphia, on Wednesday. He phoned to his wife and told her he was too ill to drive home and then stayed overnight in the city. The next day he returned home.

He is survived by his wife and four children: Lois, fifteen; Doris, fourteen; Ernest, eight, and Carl, five. Four brothers and a sister also survive. They are: Luther, of Lenhartsville; Addison, of Robensonia; Oswald, of Allentown; Titus, of Reading, and Mrs. Alfred Hindrich, of West Virginia.

COUNCIL APPROVES CANAL CO. AGREEMENT

Privilege to Lay Storm Water Sewer Here Is Granted

TO DEDICATE THE LAND

Borough Council met in special session last night to hear read the form of agreement to be entered into for permission to lay the storm water sewer on the canal basin property.

The agreement between the Pennsylvania Canal Company and the Borough was read by Secretary William J. Lefferts, as was also all correspondence pertaining to the matter. Upon the completion of the reading the agreement was approved and the proper officers of the borough authorized to affix their signatures.

The agreement gives to the borough the privilege of laying a 24-inch storm water sewer parallel with Mill street. The canal company later to dedicate two strips of land, each 50 feet wide, for public streets, extending from Pond street to the Delaware river and along the river front for the length of the canal property.

The borough agrees not to assess the canal company for any street improvements for a period of at least 10 years.

Councilmen present were: Wagner, Williams, Schmidt, Myers, Vandegriff, Fallon, Duffy, Fry, Spezzano, Winslow, Pfeiffer and Spencer.

Tullytown Pupils In Meet at Sellersville

Several of the pupils of the Tullytown grammar school journeyed to the Perkasie-Sellersville High School today to take part in the inter-scholastic meet.

The local school will be represented in reading by William Lynch and Mary Zukerko; spelling, Catharine Poane and Mildred Heller; penmanship by Mary Zukerko.

THE CAPITOL WHIRL

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Mar. 25.—(INS)—Governor Pinchot is credited among both foes and friends with ability to meet virtually any situation.

Political animosities were forgotten when the Legislative Sons of St. Patrick held their annual banquet and men and women of every nationality, party and faction gathered at the festive board.

The event was one of merriment. The Governor dropped in, spoke briefly in tune with the spirit of the gathering and departed.

In the course of his remarks lauding the Irish the executive said: "The Irishman loves a good fight and I must admit I feel that way myself sometimes."

"Why bring that up?" piped a voice from one end of the hall.

"Well, I just wanted to prepare you for what's coming," replied the Governor good-naturedly.

Termination of the bank holiday not only brought financial relief to the inhabitants of Pennsylvania but a physical respite to the State's banking department. It was no holiday for them. Dr. William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking, and his associates worked continuously without sleep for

WOMAN KILLED AS ELITE ENTERTAIN IN NEARBY CLUB

Unidentified Victim Shot On Driveway of Cedar-brooke Club

KILLER MAKES ESCAPE

Body Discovered by Club
Member As He Leaves
For Home

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—(INS)—Murder stalked by the precincts of the socially exclusive Cedarbrooke Country Club, on the outskirts of Philadelphia today.

While a number of socially elite members of the club entertained in the clubhouse, an unidentified woman was shot and killed on the main driveway leading to the clubhouse, not more than 150 yards distant. The killer or killers escaped in the darkness without their presence becoming known until the body was discovered, a short while later.

The body, still warm, was found by a club member as he left the clubhouse to drive to his home in Philadelphia. It was lying just off the driveway, near the 8th tee of the course.

The woman was described as well-dressed, between 30 and 35 years old. She wore a wedding ring, and appeared to have come from a family of moderate circumstances. Several dollars in currency was found in her purse, lying beside the body.

The woman had been shot twice, once through the head and once through the heart. Police found signs of a brief struggle, they said, indicating the shooting had occurred there. There were tracks showing an automobile had driven off the driveway at the spot. There were no other clues.

Guests in the clubhouse said they had heard no shots.

The club, of which Connie Mack, owner of the Philadelphia Athletics ball team, is president, is situated just over the county line from Philadelphia, in Montgomery county. It is one of the best known country clubs in the vicinity of Philadelphia, and its membership includes many scions of Philadelphia's "first families."

Police of Cheltenham Township and county detectives from Norristown, county seat of Montgomery county, were called on the case.

The body was discovered at 2 a. m., and police estimated death had occurred an hour or more previous to that. Every effort was being made to identify the victim.

RECASTING NEW SET-UP TO PROTECT RAILROADS

President Expected to Outline
Plan by End of Next Week

PART OF HIS 'NEW DEAL'

By George E. Durno

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, March 25.—(INS)—A recasting of the American railroad set-up in a manner designed to protect bondholders and reestablish earning capacity is the next trick to be played from President Roosevelt's amazing "new deal."

By the end of next week he is expected to make recommendations to Congress radically changing the present system of railroad operations.

Two different groups have been working on a reform program in conjunction with Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. Their viewpoints differ fundamentally but both are suggesting complete reorganization.

Elmer Worthington Laid To Rest, St. Mark's Churchyard

Burial was made in St. Mark's Churchyard yesterday of Elmer Worthington, 27, a late resident of 629 Race street.

The young man was a victim of pneumonia, dying Tuesday in Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, after an 11 days' illness.

Yesterday the Rev. Father Francis Mealey, and the Rev. Father Baird officiated at the high mass which was said in St. Mark's R. C. Church at 10 o'clock. The funeral was held from the funeral parlors of the W. I. Murphy Estate.

The late Mr. Worthington was the son of Timothy and Alice Worthington and in addition is survived by two sisters and four brothers: Mrs. John Mock, Wawa; Mrs. Mary Tomlinson, Bristol; Sylvester Worthington, Trenton, N. J.; Stanley, Edgely; Harold and Willard, of Bristol.

For the past two years the young man was athletic leader for the fourth ward boys during Boys' Week, and was well rewarded for his strenuous efforts in the work, the lads leading in number of points scored each of those seasons. Worthington had a staunch friend in every boy in the ward, and was loved and respected by all others in his large circle of friends.

The deceased was born in Yardley, but had made Bristol his home for the past 21 years.

LARGE TROPHY GIVEN TO YOUNG MEN'S ASS'N

Manus Kline Cup Presented
At Grand Theatre Last Evening

MANY OTHER AWARDS

"To be able to play basketball, one must not only be able to shoot the ball into the basket, but he must be in good health." Thus said Dr. J. Fred Wagner, president of the Bristol Borough Council, characterize a basketball player from the stage of the Grand Theatre last night.

Dr. Wagner congratulated the officials, managers and directors of Bristol Basketball League as well as members of the Y. M. A. team for making the basketball league one of the best sports organizations developed here.

The large Manus Kline trophy was awarded on this occasion to the Young Men's Association basketball team for their winning of the league, which was featured with keen competition from the start. The trophy was received on behalf of the Y. M. A. organization by John Smoyer, manager of the team. The Dr. Lefkowitz's runner-up trophy was then presented to the Third Ward A. C. George Herman received the trophy in the Pikers' behalf.

The entire Y. M. A. team was called to the stage after the trophy presentations, and each were given a gold basketball watch charm for their good work. Two members of the team, Herbert Lawrence and Dayton Fegeley, were unable to attend the affair. The following received their charms: John Smoyer, Albert Bauer, William Conca, James Roe, Horace Davis, William Hardy, Edgar Smith and Lester Bailey. Neil McDevitt, manager of the A. O. H. team, was presented with a gold watch charm because his team finished in a deadlock for second place in both halves of the league. George Herman and Edward Lavenberg were given gold watch charms for being manager and director of the runner-up team.

Dr. Wagner presented the managers and directors of the other clubs in the league with silver charms. Those who received these were: James Robinson and Verdin Watt, Odd Fellows; Edward McVaine and Michael Keating, Knights of Columbus; Frank Fields and Anthony Nicolls, St. Ann's; John Parella and Eugene Spadacino, Paterson Parchment Paper Company, and Harry Jenks and Joseph Kervick, of the Hawks.

Thomas Juno, president of the league, and James Dolan, secretary of the league, were also the recipients of awards.

Former Bristol Resident Dies at Frankford Home

Ill for one week, a former Bristol woman, Ellen Louisa Gosline (nee Githens), wife of Harry K. Gosline, died at her Frankford home, yesterday.

In addition to her husband, two sisters and one brother, survive the deceased: Mrs. Harry Croasdale, Ham-monton, N. J.; Mrs. James Farnsworth, Altoona; and Edward B. Githens, Philadelphia.

Relatives and friends have been invited to the funeral services from her late residence, 1629 Unity street, Frankford, Monday, at two p. m. The Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, pastor of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be made in Bristol Cemetery, with H. S. Rue Estate, undertakers, directing. Friends may call Sunday evening.

SLOWLY GETTING THERE

Peaceful, law-abiding, self-controlled folk are not a product of definitions of right and wrong. They are the results of breeding, of the process of evolution. The criminal class of today is greatly superior in morality and intellect to the highest type men of the stone age, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that another hundred thousand years will find the lowest class of that future age superior in all ways to the highest type of this.

Society appears to have done its full duty in the matter of reforming mankind. Through a thousand agencies it has defined right and wrong. It can do no more.

A man of the highest type the race has developed will not strike his child in the face with a club, nor will he lie in wait and shoot another man who carries a large sum of money.

He may be angry at his child and he may covet money, but he will not beat the one or steal the other. The thing that restrains him is not the knowledge that these things are wrong, but the fact that he is a gentleman—that is, a gentle man instead of a brute man.

It is not by an exercise of will that he refrains from doing these evils; he has outgrown the urge to do them.

A man of a lower type who does these things is not ignorant of the fact that he is doing wrong. He does wrong deliberately and in many cases without compunction. He follows the urge of his brute instincts.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

One of the strangest things that has happened in Washington since the new administration came into power was revealed in a little item relating to the department of commerce. It said:

"Secretary Roper in an address today predicted a diminishing of the activities of the department of commerce. He asserted activities of doubtful value would be eliminated and that employees of doubtful efficiency would be discharged. It was his first speech as secretary of commerce."

Now, this is real news. It is in the class of that where the man bites the dog. For a department head to admit that any of the activities of his department are not essential and voluntarily to take action to reduce them is almost unknown in the history of government.

Secretary Roper apparently has caught the spirit of the times. More strength to him, and may other departmental chiefs emulate the example he has set!

Middle-age is that period when you can't help feeling a little contempt for a man who's in love.

An old-timer is one who can remember when table scraps were chicken feed instead of a salad.

"Machinery merely adds to the horrors of war," says a pacifist. Not the machine that peels potatoes.

A great man has few real advantages, except that somebody dumps fish in a pool for him to catch.

Affluence, or lack of it, is what makes the man who left the country to live in the city leave the city to live in the country.

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

Ellis made shift to move away. But the cold, calculating Bundry resolutely stood his ground. He tightened his thin lips, and shook his head.

"It will not serve, Charley. We know the message that she carries now. We don't know the message she may carry if you speak to her apart."

"You don't trust me?" He seemed genuinely taken aback.

Bundry spat thoughtfully. "I'd rather trust myself if it comes to trusting anybody."

"But what could I do? What other message could I possibly send? What bargain could I drive for myself, since that must be what's in your mind?"

"I don't know. But, not knowing, we'll keep on the safe side. Come, man. Take your leave here. What the devil! You're man and wife, ain't ye? What need to be so coy?"

Monsieur de Bernis sighed, and smiled again, a little sadly. "So, Priscilla. There is no more to say. It is perhaps just as well." He bent and kissed her. It was his intention to kiss her cheek; but she turned her lips fully to meet his own.

"Charles!" she said again, in that low, anguished voice.

Monsieur de Bernis stepped back, and waved to Halliwell. The corpulent shipmaster obeying the signal picked her up in his arms, and waded out to bestow her in the stern-sheets of the waiting boat. Then the Major and Pierre followed, swung each a leg over the side, took their places on the thwart, and got out the sweeps.

The buccaners gave the boat a forward thrust, and so she was launched upon her voyage, a little white flag of truce fluttering in her bows.

Monsieur de Bernis stood with the wavelots rustling at his feet watching the boat for a little while. Priscilla did not look back. She sat in the sternsheets, with her shoulders to the shore, a little crumpled figure in green. At last he turned, and very slowly, with his chin sinking into the ruffles at his throat, he moved up the beach, Bundry and Ellis following him with no word spoken.

In the longboat Priscilla was softly weeping, so that at last Pierre, who sat beyond the Major, was moved to comfort her. He spoke to her over the Major's shoulder.

"Mademoiselle," he begged her in French, "do not weep. There is no need. All will be well with Monsieur de Bernis. He knows what he is doing. Believe me, all will be well with him."

"And, anyway," said the Major, "it's no great matter if it isn't."

Thus he expressed the bitterness aroused in him by that little scene he had witnessed at the water's edge. It provided a fitting, exasperating climax to all that he had been constrained to endure in this past month. It was high time, he thought, to restore things to their proper places in their lives, high time that Priscilla should recover the perspective which she appeared, from her latest conduct, utterly to have lost. The vision of that kiss was something that haunted the Major, and set his memory shuddering with horror. Roughly, then, did he attack the business of correcting the focus of Miss Priscilla's mental sight.

His words certainly had the immediate effect of checking her tears. Momentarily, at least, her concern, anxiety, and grief were overcome by indignation. From a white, tear-stained face her eyes blazed as they encountered the Major's.

"What do you dare to say?" she asked him, with such scornful anger that he would not have had the temerity to repeat his words even if she had given him time. "Is that how you speak of a man who has placed himself in danger, who has pledged his very life to ensure our safety, to provide us with a means of escape?"

The Major, meeting resentment with resentment, answered sullenly. "I don't perceive that at all. Stab me if I do."

"You don't? Then you are even more stupid than I have been supposing you."

"Priscilla!" He stepped rowing in his unutterable stupefaction.

Pierre's oars, sweeping rhythmically forward, struck his own suspended ones, and jarred him unpleasantly, and almost knocked him off his thwart. But he paid little heed to that. Recovering his balance mechanically, he sat with fallen jaw and goggling eyes, staring incredulously at this fledgeling who had dared to say such a thing to him. It was the end of the world. Only the realization that, overwrought, she was not responsible for her words enabled him to condone it. He smiled with the patient, exasperatingly indulgent amusement of noble minds.

"How rash you are in your conclusions! You display the intolerance of youth and inexperience."

"Better than the mean intolerance of age from which you appear to be suffering, sir."

This was a cruel thrust under the Major's guard. But, having recovered from one stupefaction, he was now prepared for anything. In the same indulgent tone he continued.

"This pirate fellow is using us for his own ends. If you can't see that, you must be purlblind, Priscilla. Consider the terms of the message..."

"There is nothing to consider but what he is doing. No perversity, no meanness," can change the appearance of that. He has had no thought but to deliver us. It is noble of him. It justifies all its steady faith in him."

The Major permitted himself to laugh at this. Looking at his face, distorted by that sardonic hilarity, she considered it the most repulsive she had ever seen.

"Noble!" he mocked, and went on to explain his point of view. "That nobility is rooted in concern for his own skin. Finding himself caught this thieving pirate hopes to make terms; and he counts himself lucky to have us under his hand, so that he may send us with his message."

From behind him came the gentle voice and the imperfect English of Pierre.

"If Monsieur de Bernis escape himself from this, he shall be told what a good opinion you have of him."

"Why, so he shall! I shall tell him so, myself," the Major snorted, in fresh anger at this further opposition.

Ill-humouredly he bent to the oars again, and after that an angry silence reigned in the boat, Priscilla disdaining to push the argument further.

In this mood they came bumping alongside of the Royal Mary, Morgan's flagship, until Pierre, standing at the bows, steadied the longboat at the foot of the entrance-ladder.

Miss Priscilla, disdaining the assistance of the Major's proffered hand, but accepting that which Pierre extended, was the first to climb the tall red side of the ship, with Major Sands following close behind to save her from falling in case of need.

NEW YORK.—New York University's College of Dentistry community service has been opened to needy school children.

Successful Book Tea Is Sponsored By Travel Club

A most successful book tea was conducted by Bristol Travel Club yesterday afternoon at the club home, with Mrs. C. Russell and Mrs. Richard T. Myers in charge of the delightful program.

Previous to the reviews by several members, Mrs. Otto Grupp, Croydon, favored with vocal solos: "Fiddle and I," "At Dawning," and "Rose of My Heart."

Mrs. George Ardrey reviewed "Inheritance" by Phyllis Bentley, a story of the rise of industrialism in England. Mrs. Louis C. Spring gave a review of Edith Wharton's "The Gods Arrive," an emotional problem novel. The reviewer read excerpts from the book to illustrate some of the emotional problems.

The story of "Life Begins at Forty" was told the members by Mrs. Myers; while Mrs. Ellis told of the large number and variety of good books at Bristol Library. Some of the excellent ones suggested to the women were: Fiction, "The Fountain," "The House Under the Waters," "Forgive Us Our Trespasses"; biography, "Theodore Roosevelt, the Story of a Friendship" (Owen Wistar); history, "Epic of America" (Adams), and "March of Democracy" in two volumes by the same author; travel, "Green Hell" (DuGuird), relating to South America; a book on Russia, "Humanity Uprooted" (Hindus); "Daughter of India" (Wilson); drama, "Broome Stages" (Dane), the story of the rise of the English theatre which covers six generations.

Mrs. Harold Spiegler talked about Pearl S. Buck, authoress of many famous Chinese stories, telling of the life of the writer, and something of her books.

Tea and sandwiches were served at the conclusion of the program.

An appeal was made by Mrs. Louis C. Spring for members to call at the home of Miss Frances Landreth for Red Cross garments to sew upon. It was stated that Bristol has received 2500 garments from the Red Cross this year, many local women working upon same for the needy.

At the next meeting Colonel Maurice Frank of the "Seeing Eye" will be present with one of the trained German shepherd dogs used for guidance of the blind. Colonel Frank will give an address and demonstration of the splendid work carried on by the "Seeing Eye."

of new variety tulips.

Another feature will be a grand exhibit of acacias. Being the hundredth anniversary of the introduction of acacias in America, the first having been shown for the first time at the Philadelphia Flower Show of 1833, the famous $100,000 group, in its entirety, from the "Lynwood" estate of Joseph E. Widener, will be prominently displayed. This is said to be the largest collection of acacias in the world, and in recognition of its quality the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia will present the gardener, William Kleinheinz, who is responsible for its development, with their Poor Richard achievement medal.

Philadelphia's famous Flower Show officially opens Monday and continues for one week. As usual it will be held in the Commercial Museum, which permits Philadelphia to show under one roof the largest collection of Spring Flowers ever assembled in this country. Every indication points to a bigger and more beautiful show than that of last year. An attendance of a hundred thousand is again expected, and being prepared for.

The keen competition of private growers will be greater than ever, and will bring out many new varieties and most interesting displays of azaleas, narcissus, lily of the valley, roses of all colors, begonias, cineraria, hyacinths, freesias, calas, spiraea, marguerites, geraniums, genista, cyclamen and amaryllis.

The display of carnations of every conceivable kind will also be greater than ever. Each year there are many new varieties of increasing size. Sweet peas, too, will be in greater profusion.

Orchids, which always win admiration, will also be a conspicuous part of the show. Louis Burk's famous collection in its entirety will again be exhibited. This is one of the most beautiful orchid collections in America.

Prizes that are open to all will also be awarded for artistic window boxes. A major prize of $1,000 will be awarded to the most outstanding exhibit of the show.

This year the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, with the cooperation of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania, will also give a number of prizes in a variety of classes for flowers arranged in vases, pitchers and metal containers; also fruits and vegetables, for outdoor supper tables, for enclosed porches, and foundation planting around doorways.

The large private conservatories in the suburbs are also competing for honors with their choicest specimens. An interesting feature, too, of all Philadelphia Flower Shows are these beautiful collections of rare plants and blossoms from the big private estates which enter into a friendly rivalry for the prizes, thus bringing millionaires and humble sons of the soil together for a common impulse—their ardent love of flowers. Many of these collections can be seen but once a year by the public, and only at the Philadelphia Flower Show.

Among some of the other attractive displays which will compete for prizes are miniature gardens, formal gardens, patio or cloister gardens, gardens featuring tea houses, dinner table decorations and economy luncheon table displays, flower "pictures," palms and foliage, plants, ferns, bulbs in flower, cut flowers of all varieties.

Four large gardens arranged with the latest in landscape effects with forced roses, shrubbery, azaleas and quantities of bulbous flowers will be greatly admired features. The lawns are of real grass grown in greenhouses especially for these gardens.

The immense museum building will be elaborately decorated with southern palms from Florida and woods smilax completely transforming the interior into a tropical landscape, a most appropriate setting for the show. Music this year will be furnished by Mrs. Dorothy Johnstone Baseler's celebrated ensemble of women harpists.

Recasting New Set-Up To Protect Railroads

It was considered probable that Mr. Roosevelt would ask Congress for compulsory grouping of all the carriers into seven big systems. Those in turn would be leased to holding corporations with authority to send freight by the cheapest and most direct route. Revenues would be lumped and apportioned on a percentage basis to the member roads of each consolidation.

The alternative plan being urged on President Roosevelt is far more revolutionary. It contemplates government guarantee of railroad bonds so as to relieve insurance companies and savings banks now loaded up with securities. The bonds would be left with their present holders under a reduced guarantee of return and the roads would be publicly operated by a board of ten directors until such time as conditions improve.

Mr. Roosevelt was understood to lean toward the first plan, largely because he is opposed to Federal guarantee of any private security.

George School Professor Addresses Friends' Society

Hitler's anti-Semitic campaign in Germany; Russia's anti-religious policy; the return of liquor to America, and the fighting in the Far East were declared to be the greatest challenge to Quakerism that the Society of Friends has met in a decade. The statement was made by George A. Walton at the formal convening of the Hicksite Friends' Yearly meeting at 15th and Race streets, Philadelphia. More than 300 were present.

"We meet in a time of unusual challenge," said Mr. Walton, who is principal of the George School, near Newtown.

"If Russia is right in its religious outlook then we are wrong. We believe hatred in war makes for the degeneration of humankind.

"We believe God made us in such a fashion that physical indulgences destroy our finer sensibilities. For that reason we have held that liquor is wrong. We believe that total abstinence is the ultimate and final solution of the problem.

"One of the greatest Nations of the world has just decided to exclude the Jewish people. If Hitler and his people are right this Society of Friends is wrong and always has been wrong."

It is the governor's duty to visit each Rotary club in his district at least once a year and to inspire the clubs to greater activity along the lines mapped out in the six objects of Rotary.

Under the leadership this year of President Clinton P. Anderson, Rotary is emphasizing the opportunity to help human relations catch up with the pace set by science, to realize the practical need of the will to understand, and to encourage the spread of international goodwill and world fellowship among the 150,000 Rotarians and the three score nations they represent.

HOLLYWOOD, . . . Peace reigns once more between Paramount and George Raft, the star returns here about the 27th to take up his work in "The Trumpet Blows."

While the settlement of the dispute has not been unexpected in Hollywood, definite news is the cause of satisfaction both at the studio and among George's friends.

Thanks to the fact that the actor's manager, Nat Goldstone, never allowed money to become an issue in the fight, this matter can, and will, be taken up with both parties in an amiable frame of mind.

Meanwhile, George won his main point. He did not have to appear in "The Story of Temple Drake."

In his new story, an original by Oliver H. P. Garrett and Porter Emerson Browne, the star plays a young Mexican, who refuses to follow family tradition and become a bull-fighter. He takes up with an instead and falls in love with an American girl (Miriam Hopkins). Jack La Rue, as printed heretofore, will play Raft's brother in the production.

NEW YORK YANKEES WILL HAVE STRONG NINE

(The following article on the New York Yankees is the ninth of a series of major league baseball prospects.)

By Frank (Buck) O'Neill

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25

(INS)—The New York Yankees, winners of the 1932 world series in four consecutive games, will go to the post on April 12, strong if not prohibitive favorite in the pennant race.

The Yankees spread-eagled the American League field last year, and despite the trading activities of the Washington Senators which unquestionably strengthened Griffiths' team, the public looks to the Yankees to win convincingly.

The assets of the Yankees are:

1. Terrific batting punch and scoring ability.

2. Exceptional pitching power.

3. The best catching staff in either league.

The problems of the Yankees are:

1. Babe Ruth.

(A) How far has he slipped since last year when obviously he had passed his peak as a player?

(B) How many games will Ruth's legs carry him through?

2. Joe Sewell at third base. Will he crack?

3. The shortstop situation.

New players who may prove sensations:

1. Russell Van Atta, pitcher from St. Paul.

2. Don Brennan, pitcher from Newark.

The probabilities are that with the exception of the two recruit pitchers named above, a southpaw and right-hander respectively, there will be few additions to the Yankee team this year. But even without them, the pitching staff is strong.

Johnny Allen, one of the great young pitchers of recent history, won 17 games and lost 4 last year, recovering from an early season injury that seriously handicapped him. Charley Ruffing won the 1932 strike-out honors with a total of 190. Lefty Gomez and George Pipgras both were effective most of the year. Walter Brown, who finished in spectacular style is counted upon to take his turn this year.

Van Atta won 23 games for St. Paul last year. He is a polished hurler and Joe McCarthy thinks well of his chances to achieve stardom. Brennan is an experienced pitcher who now seems ready for major league service. He won 26 games for the Newark Bears last year.

Ruth stands as one of the chief problems of the Yankees. If the Babe comes to his senses and signs his contract, he will carry into the start of the season his value as a gate attraction. Despite the Babe's spectacular moment in calling a home run before he hit it in the world series, his defensive play throughout the year was mediocre. He lost the long distance crown to Jimmy Fox, and he cannot run bases.

In the infield, Lou Gehrig is unsurpassed as a first baseman and Tony Lazzeri should have a good year at second base, following his spectacular comeback last year, but the left side of the infield offers a problem for McCarthy. Neither Lynn Lary nor Frank Crosetti was satisfactory last year. Lary just had a bad year. Crosetti failed to hit, and developed certain faults in fielding that greatly handicapped him. Billy Werber, that kid from Buffalo, might sneak in and grab a job at shortstop or third base.

No one knows how much longer Joe Sewell can carry on. The tiny Southern lad has been in the majors now since 1920. He has slowed down greatly, but his vast experience and exceptional talent as a batsman give him a bulge on younger and faster men.

Crosetti is said to be a better third baseman than he is a shortstop. Werber played third for Buffalo last year. If these boys can offer greater values at the turn for home than Sewell, can they get the job.
